AELITA COMMUNITY to Hold an Open Meeting of the Reading Stream for Entrepreneurs in Kaluga

On September 12 at 14:00, Dom Arkhitektora (House of the Architect, Kaluga, Lenin St. 116) hosts an open meeting of the AELITA COMMUNITY reading stream for entrepreneurs — level 3 of the programme. Free entry, registration required. Led by psychologist, transactional analyst and director Ekaterina Abdulova.

ABOUT THE MEETING

The format is texts and discussion: entrepreneurs examine the mechanisms of their own thinking through 14 books of the season — from the psychoanalysis of family and power to the philosophy of language. The meeting is open: participants who haven't read the list yet can come to get acquainted with the format before joining the ongoing stream.

I often hear from entrepreneurs that they lack resources — money, time, people. And more and more I think: the decisions we call strategic actually don't come down to the market or to resources, but to whether we have words for what doesn't yet exist. — Ekaterina Abdulova

WHAT THE STREAM IS READING

14 books — from Eric Berne and Donald Winnicott to Vladimir Propp, Konrad Lorenz and Ronald Coase, and further to Pyotr Shchedrovitsky, Alexander Piatigorsky and the Gospels. The list is arranged not chronologically but by line of thought: from a shared vocabulary of relationships and power — to questions of stable structures (family, strategy, the firm) — and on to what an entrepreneur is and how the language we think in works.
