AELITA COMMUNITY to Hold an Open Meeting of the Main Reading Stream in Kaluga

On September 13 at 14:00, Dom Arkhitektora (House of the Architect, Kaluga, Lenin St. 116) hosts an open meeting of the AELITA COMMUNITY main reading stream. Free entry, registration required. Led by psychologist, transactional analyst and director Ekaterina Abdulova.

ABOUT THE MEETING

The main stream's new season is built around the question of why we choose to be together: over the year, participants read across psychology, philosophy and fiction, working toward their own answer to why people choose to spend their lives next to one person, when they could just as easily not. The meeting is open: participants who haven't read the list yet can come to get acquainted with the club's format before joining the ongoing stream.

WHAT THE STREAM IS READING

The season opens with Eric Berne — a shared vocabulary for the games we play with one another. From there: Plato, Winnicott, Lorenz, Zoja, Bauman, Kernberg and Yalom — from parental archetypes and the nature of aggression to mature love and the year's closing question of meaning. The full season programme, month by month, is on the meeting's page.

ABOUT THE HOST

Ekaterina Abdulova is a psychologist, certified transactional analyst (ITAA), coach (ACSTH), and director. Founder of AELITA PRODUCTION. She has been reading books and leading meetings for more than 13 years.
